

“Somewhere Over There.”

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Miller have received the following letter from their son Floyd Miller, somewhere in France:

Dear Mother and all, Just a line this morning. Am very proud to able to write you this morning as I was on the battlefield when the arms were laid down and by some means I came through without a scratch. Hope to be able to see you all before so long. Hope you all are well and getting along fine. I am OK and doing fine. How is Everett getting along by now? Haven't heard from him since I came over. Had a letter from Mrs Johnson and Verna yesterday. First mail I have gotten for some time. Will not write any more this morning. Hope to hear from you again soon.
