

“Somewhere in France.”

We are in receipt of the following from Pri. S B Doughton, in France:

Dear Editor – Have been getting The Star regular, and always glad to get it.

See that quite a few of the Alleghany boys are in service and a number “Somewhere in France.”

Am sure Alleghany will do her part in this war, both on the battle field and at home, with exactness and shrewdness; but the important part will be played at home by our people there, especially our mothers. I know mine is oftimes thinking of me, for “mother” is a word that is constantly burning in my heart; but so long as the homefolks are not worrying we are not. There is nothing to worry about: we are fine and dandy. If you were over here you would be surprised how well we are fixed. Thanking you very much for your paper, will close, wishing Alleghany people much good luck and Congressman R L Doughton a good majority.
